

"Goddamn, I love Fatality. I can't help it. They're so much more than a band; they're a bundle of crass, explosive, obnoxiously positive energy spewing beer and shrapnel all over the Toronto metal scene." - Hellbound.ca

"Fatality is a quartet from Toronto known for delivering killer thrash and good times at beer-drenched live shows." - Explore Music

"The tracks are an excellent combination of thrash and beer, but there's something to be said about their live performances. Drum-offs and beer funnels. Enough said,"
- CHRY 105.5FM - The Red Switch

"If both Fatality's name and their debut LP 'Beers From The Grave' doesn't give it away, we'll give you a hint - they're full-on heavy metal thrashers." - Resonancity.com

"Zombie Holocaust font strikes again! For once, it doesn't come with terrible music. Fatality are Canucks who play the "goofy thrash" popular in the late 80's/ early 90's. Solos fly with reckless abandon; the bass is audible and practically so are the beers being cracked open. These guys must have awesome parties." - Decibel Magazine

Founding members Spencer LeVon (Singer/Guitarist), Eytan Gordon (Lead Guitarist) and Adam Zlotnik (Bassist) enlisted Andrew Suarez (Drummer) in the summer of 2008 to fill out the FATALITY roster. This led to the independent release of the band's debut album Beers From The Grave, and an impressive year to follow packed full of successful shows.

Sharing the stage with acts such as Municipal Waste, Bonded By Blood, Evile, Holy Grail, Exodus, Razor, DBC, and headlining many of their own shows, FATALITY have demonstrated dedication to their passion for decimating audiences with their high voltage performances, and above everything else, having a damn good time.
